I'm really excited to be the new cabinet member for children and I'm looking forward to making sure each and every one of you has a great time at school and gets the opportunities you deserve.

In this Headstart you can read about some of the ways we hope to improve things for young people and their families in Wandsworth. We're bringing in a new school food strategy to make sure everyone has access to good, nutritious meals, and this term for the first time we've helped families who struggle to pay for expensive school uniforms. This summer many of you took part in our Wandsworth Connected: Summer Fun scheme, while others have been part of workshops using art and poetry to explore the climate crisis. You can read about both and see pictures in this edition. Most of all we want to help families cope with the cost of living crisis. We're aware that for many it can be a choice between heating and eating, and that's not acceptable. That's why we have set aside £5m to be used to support a range of organisations, projects and initiatives designed to give residents more support during these difficult times. See inside for information on where families can get the help and support they need.

Take care of each other, and have fun this term!

Congratulations to Saint John Bosco College students Phoenix, Diane and Marvellous who celebrated six grade 9s and eighteen grade 8s between them

Exam success

Wandsworth students excelled in their exams this year, with all schools showing improvement since 2019.

Provisional GCSE results show that the 'Attainment 8' score across Wandsworth schools at GCSE has improved by 4.2 points to 55 since 2019 – the last pre-pandemic year.

Attainment 8 measures the achievement of an individual student across their eight best performing subjects. The increase is roughly the equivalent of half a grade improvement in all subjects for all pupils since 2019. Results in English and maths were particularly strong with the proportion of students achieving grade 5 or above, increasing by nine per cent in English and 12 per cent in maths.

In the English Baccalaureate (EBacc) achievement at grades 9-4 increased by six percentage points to 46 per cent.

At A-level the proportion of A* grades was 11 per cent

– an increase of six per cent from 2019. Almost all pupils (97 per cent) passed with an A* to E grade, with the proportion of grades A* to B increasing to 54 per cent – up eight per cent from 2019.

In vocational qualifications, including BTECs, more than a third of grades awarded were distinction or better.

“ I'm immensely proud of students' hard work. Now we will get on with working in partnership with parents, children, schools and the community as a whole to make sure every child fulfils their full potential. ”

Clr Kate Stock, cabinet member for children

Magic Breakfasts for children

Wandsworth is working on a plan to make sure more children get access to free, nutritious hot meals.

Three percent of primary school children have nothing to eat for breakfast and 17 per cent of secondary pupils don't eat lunch. Many parents think packed lunches are healthier but it's easier to get all the nutrients children need into a hot meal.

Schools will be offered the opportunity to take part in a one-year council-funded pilot scheme run by the charity Magic Breakfast so that children who attend breakfast clubs can get a healthy breakfast for free.

It's all part of a wider School Food Strategy being drawn up by the council alongside young people, families and partner organisations such as the NHS and local voluntary groups.

Other actions will include looking at the school meals service to make sure it provides fresh, healthy unprocessed food and making sure all those eligible for free school meals receive them.

And the council will continue to provide free school meals to eligible children during the holidays and on holiday schemes like this summer's Wandsworth Connected: Summer Fun. Find out more about that scheme over the page.

Summer Fun

Getting connected during summer of fun

WOW, what a summer that was!

More than a thousand young people enjoyed a huge range of free and low-cost activities this summer in the Wandsworth Connected: Summer Fun scheme.

Wandsworth Council, in partnership with local clubs and organisations, put on loads of activities with everything from sport and arts and crafts to cooking, drama, music and days out. There was even a chance to get job advice from local employers including Penguin Publishing.

And for the first time families came together at one-stop Get Connected Hubs, set up in the heart of communities, where they could get a range of support and advice including special needs support, housing, finance, employment and parenting.

Keep an eye on the council's website for details about what's happening over the Christmas holidays.

Fun at Elays Network

WANDSWORTH CONNECTED

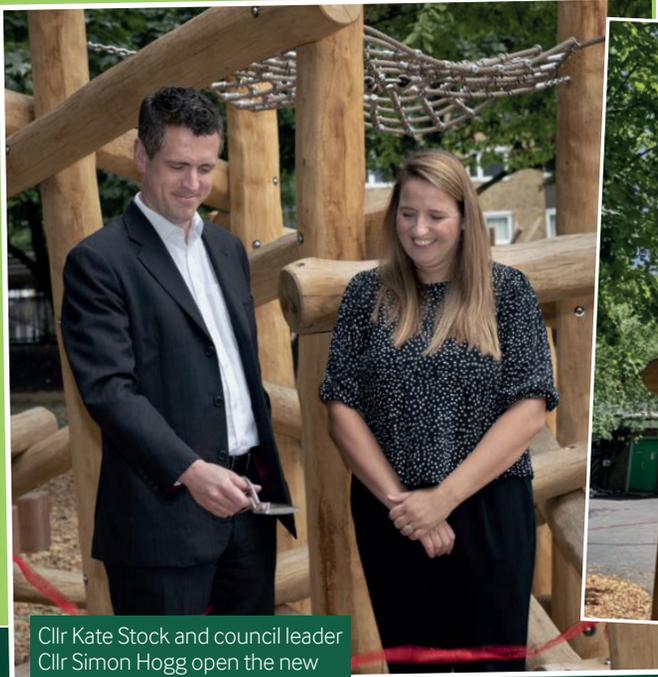

Project manager at Elays Abdirahman said: "Summer HAF was a great success at Elays Network. It makes us smile to see the programme empower the children and young people - through learning new skills, developing healthy eating attitudes, building confidence and making new friendships".

Kimber Skatepark ran activities in their dedicated and purpose-built facilities in King George's Park and out in the community. One young person said: "I loved taking part in the summer camp at Kimber Skatepark. I made new friends and I tried skateboarding and climbing for the first time ever."

The Fit4Kidz scheme included sports and DJ'ing. Jasmine, who has been offered a full bursary to join the FFK under 11s football team said: "I enjoyed playing football and eating chicken nuggets for lunch."

Cllr Kate Stock and council leader Cllr Simon Hogg open the new York Gardens playground.

The revamped Windmill play area.

Get ready to play

More new and upgraded playgrounds have opened in the borough since the last Headstart in February. Over £3.6m has been spent over the past three years on improving playgrounds, with local families helping to choose the new equipment.

Frames, slides, fitness equipment and even table tennis for all ages are just some of the new outdoor facilities now open and free to use in the Savona Estate, Patmore Cooperative and the Yvonne Carr Centre, SW8.

They were funded by Wandsworth Council as part of a programme of local improvements using contributions from nearby Nine Elms developments and developed in close consultation with local communities.

A new playground was also opened on the nearby York Gardens Park in July. It's for children of all ages, with a nearby separate fitness area and table tennis tables for older children.

At King George's Park a new playground opened in March for all children up to 16 and on Wandsworth Common the revamped Windmill playground opened this summer – three years after the Chivalry Road toddler playground on the common was upgraded.

The layout was chosen by local people from three different options and includes more space for games as well as new equipment and an emphasis on nature and biodiversity.

A new play area also opened at The Pleasance in Putney's Dover House Estate. There was extensive consultation with local people who helped chose the design.

Meanwhile in Battersea Park a revamped toddlers and junior playground opened in the spring.

The new-look playground includes a sensory zone, inclusive play equipment and a 'nature' themed toddler area.

Your loving home can change a future

Could you be foster carer?

The council is always in need of new carers to look after the growing number of children in need of care - including teenagers and groups of siblings.

You can be married or single, gay or straight, a homeowner or renting, and from any cultural background. All you need is a spare bedroom and a willingness to provide a stable, caring home. Maybe your child is heading off to university next year and you have a spare room you could offer a teenager?

Come along to one of our informal fostering information sessions and discover if fostering is for you. You can find out what it involves, and the support and allowances you will be entitled to. You can meet the council's fostering recruitment and assessment team and ask any question you might have. The next session is on November 10. To book your place email fosteringrecruitment@wandsworth.gov.uk or call 020 8871 6666.

Jeffery's story

Jeffery has been brought up by a foster mum since he was 6. Now aged 19, he is studying at college and hopes to set up his own events management social enterprise.

"I went into foster care with my older sister and brother, so there were two familiar faces which made adjusting easier. We were always treated the same as my foster mum's three children, we went on the same after-school schemes and did the same activities, and we all went to the same neighbourhood church. My foster mum focused on helping me succeed in school, and there was lots of positive engagement with other professionals, like social workers.

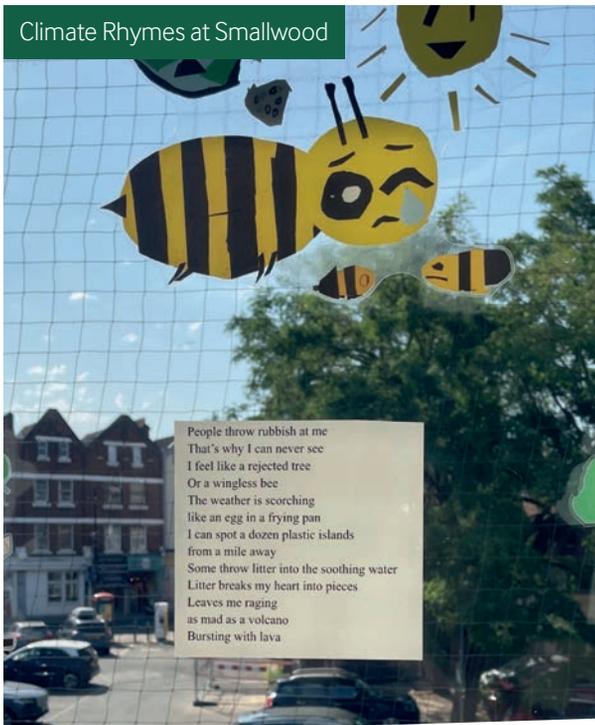

"If I didn't have a good carer it would have been harder to achieve what I have. In the care system you're open to a lot of distractions and it's easy to go down the wrong road. A good carer acts as a moral compass.

"I would say to anyone thinking of fostering, that when your motive is to benefit the child it's a brilliant, rewarding experience. You're benefiting a child's life and pointing them in a positive direction."

Supporting schools to take climate action

Climate Rhymes at Smallwood

Borough schools are getting support from the council to fight climate change, including work to decarbonise buildings and the launch of the Wandsworth Schools Climate Change Network.

The network gives schools the ability to develop and share resources that can be used to teach students about climate change, as well as swap information about how best to take climate action, including reducing waste, cutting energy use and working effectively with parents

Six borough schools are getting upgrades to make their buildings greener. Brandehow, Broadwater, Earlsfield, Ernest Bevin, Falconbrook, Fircroft and Ravenstone will be getting work to reduce emissions and cut energy costs including solar panels and LED lights.

Climate Rhymes at Brandehow

Meanwhile the Creative Wandsworth Partnership has been working with schools to help pupils express their thoughts on the climate emergency through arts projects. This year young people have produced stop motion animated shorts in Animating Climate Change, have worked with RCA artist Ellie Wyatt to explore their relationship with nature in the Plant Power project, and created original poems and artwork which was exhibited in borough libraries during the summer in the Climate Rhymes project.

Clean, active travel

Work to keep young people safe and clean up their air around schools is to be stepped up.

There are currently 19 school streets in Wandsworth and more are going to be brought in. School streets stop traffic from travelling past school entrances at drop-off and pick-up times. Where school streets can't be installed, the council will look at alternatives like new crossings.

There will also be more work with schools to bring in travel plans to monitor how students are travelling to school and to encourage them to use sustainable methods if they can, like walking, cycling and scooting. The council runs training sessions in schools to make sure young people know how to cycle and scoot safely.

Find out more about school streets at wandsworth.gov.uk/schoolstreets. Find out about cycle training for adults and children at wandsworth.gov.uk/cycle-training-and-skills

One of the ways the council is encouraging active travel is with its Try Before you Bike scheme run in partnership with Peddle My Wheels.

Individuals and families can rent new or nearly-new bikes, cargo bikes or electric bikes for a monthly fee, as well as trailers that attach to bikes.

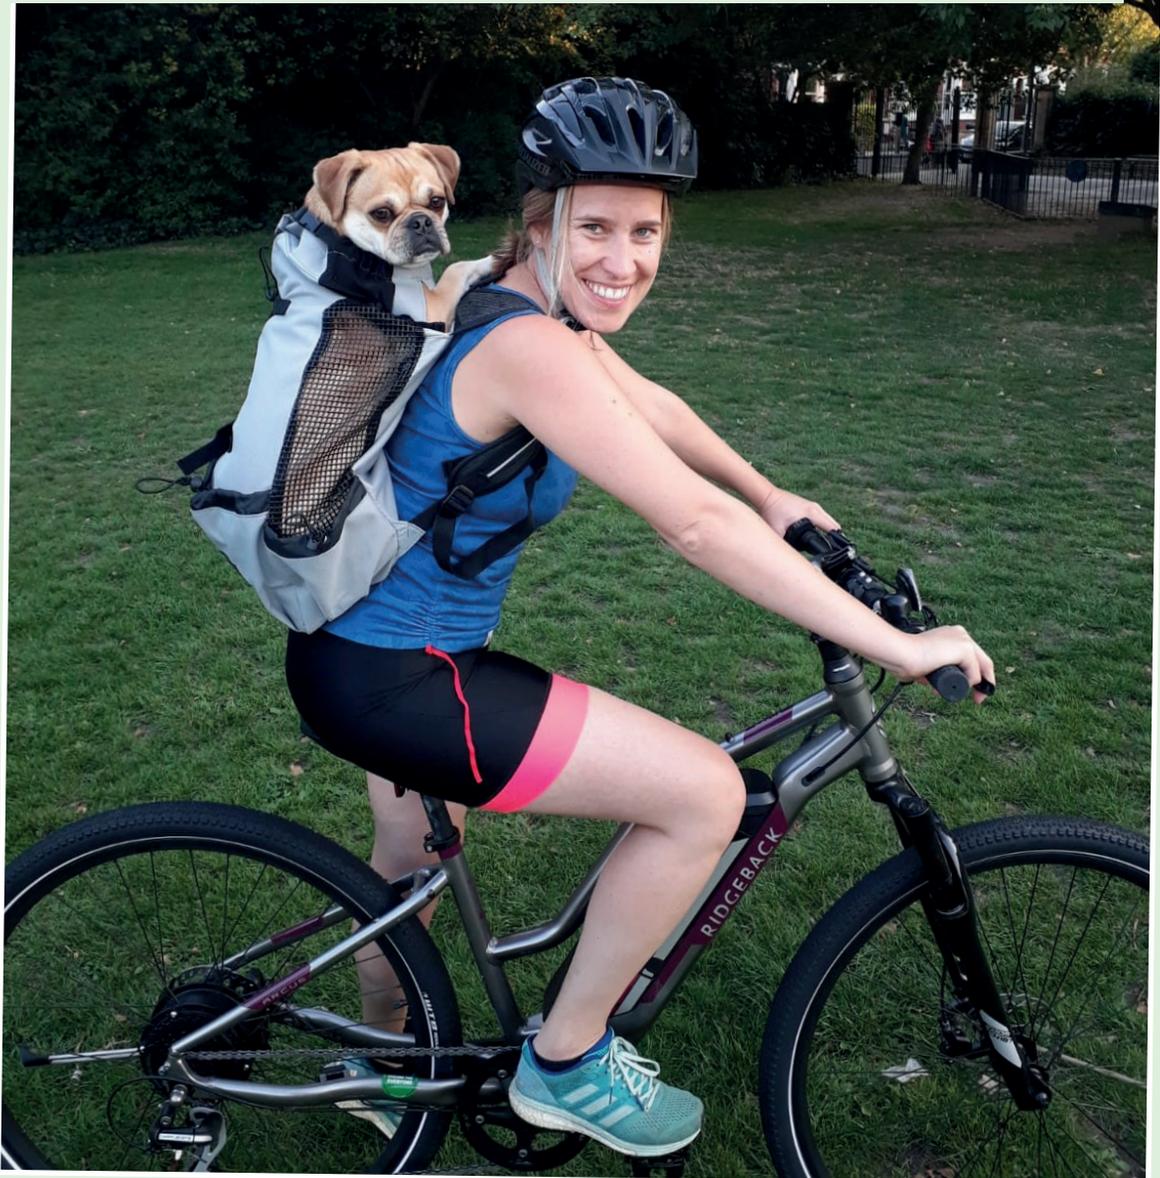

Now residents of three estates can take part in the scheme for free. Thanks to Wandsworth Council's climate change grant fund, 20 free bikes are available for residents of Patmore

Cooperative, Savona Estate and Carey Gardens who would like to try out cycling but have been hit by the cost of living crisis.

The new free trial includes three months of cycle hire, a cycle skills session and helmet. After the first three months, participants will have the option to buy the bike or continue hiring at a discounted price.

If you live on one of these three estates find out more by emailing info@nineelmsslondon.com

Caring for their community

Members of the Garratt Park School Council have become Team London Young Ambassadors.

Team London Young Ambassadors is the Mayor of London's school volunteering programme which connects young Londoners with their communities through social action.

Over the six month programme they created a social action project to help homeless girls and women in Wandsworth. They made a video about their project and pitched it to a panel, including members of the Mayor of London's Office, and received a £1,000 grant.

They budgeted and contacted wholesalers for the best possible prices and then made up 120 bags each containing essentials like a comb, toothbrush, mini first aid kit and hand sanitiser.

Non-profit The Spires Centre in Tooting helped distribute the bags. The centre runs sessions every weekday where they help people who are homeless or insecurely housed. They also provide warm food and drink and distribute food parcels, clothes and toiletries to those in desperate need. And they run a specialist Women's Service to engage with women at risk.

Getting connected

Power to Connect has now handed out 2028 donated and reconditioned laptops to 80 schools and 17 community organisations, including 55 given out in August to Wandsworth Welcome Refugees for families settling in Wandsworth.

Power to Connect is a partnership between the council and Battersea Power Station to help Wandsworth children and families get online. As well as donating devices, it runs digital skills courses for parents and carers. Call or text 07934 553192 for details.

Inspectors praise SEND progress

Inspectors have praised the progress being made in Wandsworth in their ambition to improve support for children who have special education needs and disabilities (SEND).

Ofsted and the Care Quality Commission (CQC) spoke with children and young people, parents and carers, as well as schools, health and local authority personnel. They also reviewed individual Education Health and Care Plans (EHCP) and visited an education provider.

The inspectors concluded that “leaders are learning from and taking more account of the views of parents, carers, children and young people” with parent representatives having “more trust” in Local Authority and NHS leaders, especially when concerns are raised.

This includes better quality Education Health and Care

(EHC) Plans, which are simpler and “easier for children and young people to understand”.

Cabinet Member for Children Cllr Kate Stock said: “I am proud of the great work and the progress made and I would like to thank everyone involved, in particular our schools and parents, for their contribution to the journey, particularly during the pandemic.

“The council is establishing additional resource bases, redesigning existing provision and increasing capacity in Special Schools across the borough to keep our children in high quality schools within our local communities.”

Emotional learning

Falconbrook Primary School is the first in Wandsworth to be awarded Worldwide Social and Emotional Learning (SEL) Model School Status for its work improving children's emotional articulation, resilience, problem solving and social skills.

Meanwhile West Hill Primary School has been awarded the National Nurturing Schools Programme Award. Nurture UK is an organisation dedicated to improving the social, emotional, mental health and wellbeing of children and young people.

Students give a thumbs up

BUILDING MEMORIES BRICK BY BRICK

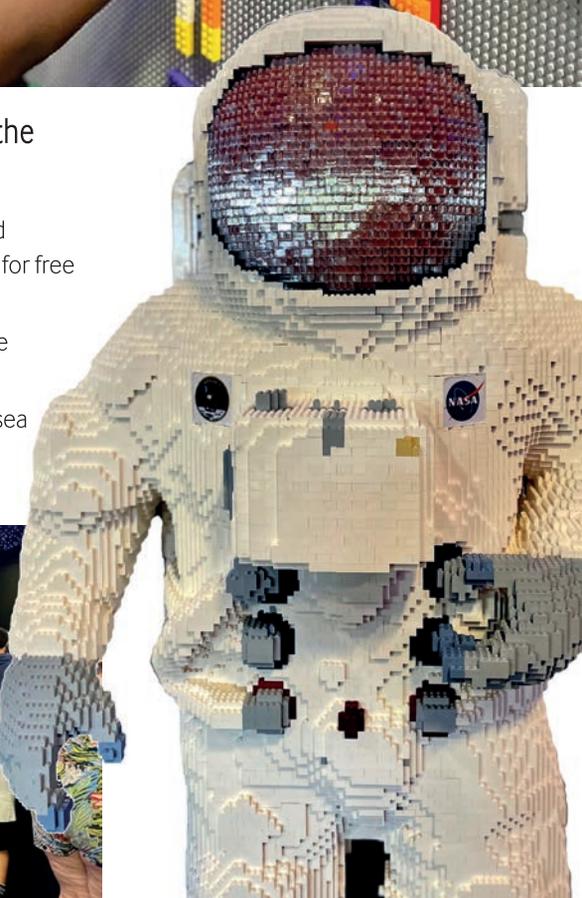

Lego fans went along to Evolution in Battersea Park in the summer to take part in BrickLive.

The free community day was organised by the council, Enable and Evolution and 2000 tickets were available to local children eligible for free school meals and their families.

They could make their own creation and see an exhibition of some spectacular giant sculptures, as well as enjoying a free lunch.

Following the exhibition, Enable welcomed all attendees to Battersea Park's Bowling Green for biodiversity workshops, arts and crafts activities, and sports sessions – all rounded off with a kids' disco.
