This summer the Office for National Statistics confirmed that Wandsworth is the most popular destination for people moving into our great city from elsewhere in the UK. But why is the Brighter Borough the number one choice?

There is no single answer, but we do stand out from our neighbours in many different ways. We have some of the best local schools in the country, with 95 per cent rated ‘good’ or ‘outstanding’ by Ofsted, and we’re blessed with a very high proportion of green open space. The council charges an exceptionally low tax rate, unemployment is low and we have the very lowest crime rate in all of inner London.

But our popularity comes with real challenges. As demand grows Wandsworth’s house prices have spiralled and providing new housing is the number one priority for the council. Last year we completed the second highest number of low cost homes in London and we are now exploring ways of boosting our building programmes even further. Read more on pages 20-21.

Ensuring local services keep pace with a growing population is another challenge, and this is especially hard while council funding continues to fall. In response Wandsworth has broken new ground by sharing its workforce, infrastructure and buying-power with neighbouring Richmond Council in a move that saves both councils around ten million pounds each year. Making major back office savings means Wandsworth can buck the national trend and expand key services like our libraries and fly-tip enforcement programmes.

And Wandsworth comes out on top in lots of other ways. We were the first borough to protect our pubs from redevelopment and in Nine Elms we have the UK’s biggest regeneration programme with the likes of tech giant Apple and the US Embassy moving in. We’re also remarkable for having the fastest growing cycling rate in the UK, which has risen to the fifth highest in the entire country.

But of all Wandsworth’s unique features it is our diversity and openness that I value the most. No matter how our communities change and evolve the borough remains welcoming, positive and full of the creative energy that makes London great. This is an exceptional place to live and work and the council is striving hard to make it even better.

Ravi Govindia, leader of Wandsworth Council

EU nationals need “absolute clarity”

Council leader Ravi Govindia has called for European nationals to be given “absolute clarity” over their future status in the UK and has praised their great contribution to life in Wandsworth.

In a letter to Theresa May, Cllr Govindia has urged the Prime Minister to make this aspect of the ongoing EU negotiations her top priority. The Government has published a white paper setting out an offer for UK based EU citizens to continue living here as they do now, with continuing rights to healthcare, education, benefits and pensions. These terms are now being negotiated with Member States of the EU. While talks continue Cllr Govindia has instructed council officers to develop proposals for advising European citizens on their rights and how the Government’s proposals could affect them.

First step for Battersea housing estates revival

The regeneration of the Winstanley and York Road housing estates has taken an important step forward with work now underway on the first ‘satellite site’ in Rowditch Lane where six new homes are being built.

These properties will be offered to estate residents who need to move ahead of the first phase of the building programme when the first post-war blocks will be replaced with new housing.

Every secure council tenant and owner-occupier who needs to move during the redevelopment process is guaranteed a brand new home on the estate as soon as they are built. This means the existing community can stay to enjoy the improved neighbourhood. This ambitious long-term project will provide approximately 2,275 new homes in total, including additional new council homes as well as shared ownership and affordable rent properties.

A new combined leisure, community, library and children’s centre is also planned, with a redesigned park, shops and business space, with employment and training opportunities for local people.

The project is being delivered in partnership between Wandsworth Council and Taylor Wimpey.

Sprinklers for 6,400 homes

One hundred council-owned high-rise blocks in Wandsworth are to be fitted with sprinklers in the wake of the Grenfell Tower disaster. The council will install sprinklers in all of its blocks of ten storeys and above, protecting some 6,400 homes.

Housing spokesman Cllr Claire Sallier said: “The tragic events at Grenfell Tower have brought this issue into sharp focus and although we do not believe there is a specific risk to our tower blocks we’re not prepared to take a chance. We will be fitting sprinklers to all these flats as quickly as possible so that residents can be reassured that everything that can be done is being done to protect them, their families and their homes.”

Former Wandsworth Fire Commander Darren Munro added: “I very much welcome this announcement. This is a big commitment from Wandsworth and we will continue to work closely with the council to make sure the borough and its residents are as safe as possible.”

Tower blocks residents can reduce fire risks by:

• Regularly checking your smoke alarm. If it’s not working contact the council and it will be replaced free of charge
• Keeping balconies free from clutter
• Not leaving rubbish or bikes in communal areas or obstructing escape routes
• Making sure you know where your nearest fire exit is
• Not smoking in common areas of the block
• Fully extinguishing cigarettes and disposing of them carefully and safely
New attractions on the way at Battersea Park

Having just retained its coveted Green Flag Award and opened a brand new £150,000 children’s playground, the list of attractions at Battersea Park continues to grow.

Staging the Formula E electric motor racing championships in the park for two years raised £500,000 for park improvements plus £2.5m for other frontline local services. A further £250,000 has been levied from the developers of the neighbouring Battersea Wharf and Chelsea Bridge Wharf housing schemes, with an additional sum pledged by amenity group the Friends of Battersea Park. This money will pay for:

- A new garden - The Promontory is an unused area east of Albert Bridge which juts into the river by around 12m which is about to be transformed into an attractive new landscaped garden.

- Cascade fountain restoration project – The cascades are an important and prominent historic landscape feature which can’t be switched on at the moment. A sum of £160,000 has been pledged to bring them back into use.

- Restoration of seating shelters – Three historic shelters are being refurbished with new seating and substantial structural and decorative renovation.

Other projects are also being drawn up to utilise another £260,000. A similar sum is being spent on maintaining the park’s river wall.

This Autumn will see Wandsworth’s fourth passenger pier open for business at Battersea Power Station, giving thousand of local people easy access to the fast growing riverbus service.

MBNA Thames Clipper catamarans will be calling at the pier seven days a week, offering quick journey times into central London.

Wandsworth Council has long supported the expansion of riverbus services and has used its planning powers to secure the new passenger piers at Plantation Wharf (which opened in 2015) and at the power station site.

Heritage restoration for Tooting Common

Restoration of some of Tooting Common’s most treasured landmarks and natural habitats is now well underway.

The Heritage Lottery Fund has provided a £1.4m grant to pay for the restoration of the common’s lake, its valuable and rare acid grassland habitat, the 1930s drinking fountain and the replanting of the historic Chestnut Avenue.

Tooting Common covers 220 acres, making it the largest open space in the borough and is home to more than 3,000 trees.

The work to the grasslands will help recreate a rare and delicate habitat for invertebrates like butterflies and grasshoppers and work at the lake is designed to make it more welcoming for aquatic life, birds, insects and plants.

The Woodfield Pavilion is being refurbished to provide toilets and meeting space for community groups, while dozens of new semi-mature trees are to be planted along Chestnut Avenue to replace the declining horse chestnuts which are approaching the end of their natural lives.

As well as restoring ancient habitats and boosting biodiversity, the heritage scheme is offering new volunteering opportunities for local people and improving their job and life skills.

It will also see the compilation of ‘The Common Story’ - a project that is working with volunteers to unravel some of Tooting Common’s historical mysteries and provide research and archive training to those taking part.

Fresh consultation for Alton Estate plan

A fresh round of consultation on regeneration of the Alton Estate in Roehampton will get underway in September as the council and its development partner Redrow ask for feedback on the latest scheme proposals.

In the coming years this project will see around 1,000 new homes built, including new council and shared ownership properties. There are also plans for a range of improved facilities including a new library and shopping area, a children’s centre and improvements to green spaces and the public realm.

All secure council tenants and owner-occupiers who need to move during the redevelopment programme are guaranteed a brand new home on the estate and can access a package of support to make the moving process as easy as possible.

As a condition of appointment Redrow will provide local residents with a range of job, training and apprenticeship opportunities which will be offered through the council’s Work Match local recruitment team.

The feedback received during this fresh consultation will inform a planning application which is expected to be submitted next year.

Anyone for tennis?

People inspired by Wimbledon can improve their serve and volley skills on local tennis courts boosted by a £500,000 investment. All Star Tennis has upgraded 28 courts on Wandsworth Common, Tooting Common, King George’s Park, Wandsworth Park, F urzedown Rec in Tooting and Leader’s Gardens in Putney.

Meanwhile swimmers at Tooting Bec Lido can also use a new £900,000 fitness pavilion, paid for by the council, South London Swimming Club and Sport England.

Wandsworth Local Fund powering neighbourhood projects

Another wave of neighbourhood improvement schemes to the tune of almost £2m has been given the green light, including upgrades to road, parks, streetlights and playgrounds.

New projects due to start in the coming months include improvements to Falcon Park in Battersea and Leader’s Gardens in Putney, upgrades to the Chivalry Road, St Mark’s and Windmill Gardens play spaces and street improvements to Tours Passage and Lydden Twilley.

There will also be more money for Battersea Arts Centre, and the historic mounting block in Putney Vale Cemetery will be re-sited and the gates renovated.

The money comes from the Wandsworth Local Fund (also known as the Neighbourhood Community Infrastructure Levy), a charge the council makes on developers to pay for new and improved infrastructure. In the last two years almost £8m has been raised this way.

Local people are encouraged to visit the WLF website and then contact their local ward councillors to discuss potential schemes within their area.

Green light for new Battersea NHS Health Centre

North Battersea is a step closer to having a new NHS health centre after the council committed £13m to the scheme using Wandsworth Local Fund money collected from private development sites in Nine Elms.

The new state-of-the-art health facility will be built in Sleaford Street, within Battersea Power Station’s Phase 4a development. It is expected to open in 2020-21, providing GP and other healthcare services to thousands of existing local residents as well as new arrivals to the rapidly growing area.

School application deadlines

The deadline to apply for a place in a Wandsworth secondary school is October 30. The primary school deadline is January 15.

Ofsted has rated 95 per cent of Wandsworth’s schools as good or outstanding, one of the best borough-wide quality ratings in the country. Find out how to apply at wandsworth.gov.uk/admissions

Nominate a local hero

The Wandsworth Civic Awards, run by the Mayor of Wandsworth, shine the spotlight on people who have volunteered their time to help others in their community, including charity workers, community activists or just someone who acts as a helping hand to friends or neighbours.

To find out more or nominate someone for this year’s award, visit wandsworth.gov.uk/civicawards.

The deadline for nominations is October 17.
Crackdown on rogue landlords

Privately rented properties are to be inspected by the council as part of a drive to improve standards – with fines for landlords who flout the law.

New legislation requires landlords to pay for a licence from the council if they let a property to five or more people making up more than one household.

The Government is expanding the definition of a House in Multiple Occupation (HMO), including accommodation above and beneath commercial premises.

The new, broader definition means more homes in the borough will require inspection by officers to ensure national safety standards are met before an HMO licence can be issued.

Cllr Clare Salier, Cabinet Member for Housing, said: “It’s important that tenants and landlords are aware of both their rights and responsibilities - we won’t hesitate to take action against those who break the law.”

A Tooting landlord was prosecuted by the council recently and ordered to pay a fine and court costs of several thousand pounds for neither applying for a licence nor providing gas and electrical safety documentation while renting to tenants.

The council employs a team of officers to help ensure tenants live in well maintained accommodation, and to help landlords provide a high quality service. Find out more at wandsworth.gov.uk/privatehousing or londonlandlords.org.uk

Sensory garden blooms

A new sensory garden at the Church Lane complex needs centre in Tooting for adults with learning disabilities has been officially opened following a major fundraising drive.

The centre is part of the Adult Learning Disability Day Service, run by the charity One Trust on behalf of the council.

The town hall provided £36,000 towards the garden and the other half of the cost was raised through the Tesco Bags of Help Scheme, Postcode Local and the Gregg’s Foundation. Design, tendering and fundraising support was provided by Groundwork.

Elite graduates

Seventeen young women aged between 14 and 17 were guests of honour at Wandsworth Town Hall this summer as they celebrated graduating from Street Elite - an innovative youth development programme which uses the power of sport to build aspiration and self belief.

Activities were based around sports coaching, helping to build confidence and teach valuable leadership and teamwork skills. The young women involved were identified by the council’s youth service, schools or parents as being at risk of falling out of education and in need of fresh inspiration and support to get back on track.

The course is a partnership between Change Foundation, Berkeley Foundation and Wandsworth Council. Find out more at street-elite.org
Help pin point flytip criminals

The council’s enforcement teams are cracking down on the small minority of people who make a mess on local streets and are asking local residents to help them pinpoint repeat offenders.

In June, enforcement officers issued 363 fines for littering, 17 fines for littering from a vehicle and successfully tracked down and fined 12 flytippers. The team also takes action against businesses that don’t properly manage their waste and issued 134 penalty charge notices to local traders during the same month.

Enforcement officer Jeanette Mahoney (pictured right) said: “Flytipping is a crime that can cause real distress and anger. We regularly speak to local people who love their area but feel its being degraded by those who simply dump waste out in public when it suits them.

“If you can help to identify a flytpper then please contact us in confidence. Many successful investigations stem from the intelligence provided by local people and enforcement action can often stop a repeat offender for good.”

Linking volunteers with charities

Link Up Battersea, which connects local people with professional skills to local charitable organisations, is looking for more volunteers. Skills currently in demand include marketing, legal, finance, human resources, web design, photography, video production, writing and project management.

HR professional Pelin Buyuksarac (pictured) was matched with Wandsworth Citizens Advice, which needed help reviewing and updating its HR policies. She said: “I was able to use my skills to help an organisation working to improve the lives of those in need, and the experience has improved my confidence in my abilities.” Find out more at linkup-battersea.org.

The ‘go to’ borough

Wandsworth is the “go to borough” for people moving to London from the rest of the UK, according to the Office for National Statistics. Last year 13,105 Britons left other parts of the country to seek their fortunes in Wandsworth, making it the capital’s most popular destination.

A low council tax rate, superb schools, green open spaces and low crime rate are among the borough’s top appeals.

Get ready for Tootopia

The food, drink and culture festival that’s saluting Tooting is on September 22-24. The Tootopia Fringe features live performances including comedy and cabaret, plus there’s activities for kids and a street food takeover.

Provisional data from both of Wandsworth Council’s pollution monitoring stations on Putney High Street indicate a major fall in pollution episodes as years of sustained investment in the bus fleet takes effect.

Between February and June this year the EU’s hourly nitrogen dioxide (NO2) objective was exceeded six times at the kerbside pollution monitor, compared to 742 times during the same six month period in 2016 and 640 times in 2015.

The council’s other high street monitoring station, which is mounted to a building façade further from the traffic, recorded zero hourly pollution episodes since the start of February. This compares to 200 last year and 135 times in 2015.

Back in 2012 there were 1,213 pollution episodes during this six month period so this year’s provisional figure would represent a 99 per cent fall.

Councillors stress that the data is provisional at this stage and that there is still more work to be done before residents are breathing consistently clean and healthy air.

The fall in pollution coincides with the introduction of cleaner buses along the street which have been put into service here since the council’s unique research project exposed the bus fleet as responsible for over 80 per cent of nitrogen dioxide build ups.

The former Mayor of London put Putney to the front of the queue for clean bus investment in 2012 and the current Mayor continued this policy. The street was rebranded as a ‘low emission bus zone’ in March this year. However concerns have been raised about older polluting diesel buses being swapped onto other local routes, rather than being upgraded or replaced.

Deputy council leader Jonathan Cook said:

“It looks like our campaign to ban polluting buses from Putney High Street has had a major impact and our ban on daytime deliveries could also be a significant factor in cutting the congestion which contributes to pollution build ups.

“While this looks like very positive news we can’t accept older polluting buses simply being switched to other routes and we want assurances from the Mayor that this won’t happen again. Trading one community’s health for another’s is wrong and we want to be sure that polluting buses are being taken off our streets altogether.”

Wandsworth Council argues that the complete removal of diesel buses from London’s streets should be the top priority for the Mayor of London’s air quality strategy. The council is now pushing for the removal of diesel buses from other pollution hotspots within the borough, including parts of Clapham Junction and Tooting where buses represent a high proportion of the traffic flow.

Get into catering with Work Match

Are you interested in a career in catering or hospitality, or maybe you already work in these industries and want a new challenge? Then Work Match wants to hear from you.

As the regeneration of Wandsworth continues and restaurants, bars, hotels and coffee shops move in, hundreds of new jobs are being created.

The council’s Work Match recruitment services is working hard to make sure local people are first in the line to make the most of these opportunities.

Work Match is asking businesses what skills their staff need, and then training up local people accordingly. They can then match Wandsworth job seekers to job vacancies, and help them apply and prepare for an interview.

Get in touch with Work Match for training in customer service, serving non-alcoholic cocktails, becoming a barista, food hygiene and health and safety.

Help slow down speeding drivers

Wandsworth now has a 20mph speed limit in all its quieter residential neighbourhoods and you can help the police tackle motorists that drive too fast by taking part in a Community Road Watch scheme.

The scheme gives residents the opportunity to work alongside local police teams by using handheld speed cameras to identify vehicles breaking the limit. Warning letters will be issued where appropriate and the information can help police teams target hot spots.

Apply now for council grants

The next round of the Wandsworth Grant Fund will open this month and local community and voluntary organisations are urged to get their applications ready.

The fund supports the work of local not-for-profit organisations, including projects to support the arts, smarten up neighbourhoods, help young people, improve people’s health and encourage good citizenship and civic engagement.

The most recent round of funding in June saw £114,000 shared between a wide range of projects including schemes to keep young people away from crime, youth support services and help for homeless people and people with Sickle Cell Disease. Read about two recent recipients (right).

Take your business to the next level

Wandsworth businesses can benefit from a package of support this autumn as the council’s Your Business Your Growth support package continues.

Wandsworth Foodies helps local food and hospitality companies start up and grow, providing workshops, advice on financing, selling and branding, trial trading opportunities and one-to-one advice sessions. The programme is to be expanded to help more local entrepreneurs.

There will also more chance for all types of businesses and start-ups to access Networking Wandsworth business advice clinics delivered by Branduin Business Support in partnership with the Wandsworth Chamber of Commerce. Support subsidised by the council includes workshops on key business development areas, mentoring and one to one coaching. Specialist support and networking is available for digital and tech companies from Wandsworth Digitech.

Have we improved opportunities for children and young people?

A comprehensive plan to improve performance of children’s social services is in place following an Ofsted inspection in 2015. Progress against this plan has been externally monitored by Ofsted who have conducted 4 visits during which they have reviewed different parts of the service. All visits have shown positive progress.

Charging points go live

The first wave of new electric vehicle charging points go live this September as the council begins a major expansion of the borough’s green infrastructure network.

A total of 35 charging points will be installed across 11 different locations as follows:

By the end of the year there will be over 100 charging points in operation as the roll-out continues. They will all be part of the Source London network which allows members to power up their vehicles at hundreds of other locations around the city.

The expansion comes as more local people begin to embrace zero emission electric vehicles and is a key plank in the council’s air quality improvement programme.

Rates relief for small traders

Qualifying small firms can now claim a discount on their business rates bills by filling out a quick and easy form and sending it back to the town hall. Traders should keep an eye out for a pink envelope from the council which includes the short and simple application pack.

Business rates are set by national government, not by local councils. The relief scheme has been designed to protect vulnerable local firms from an increase in their business rates bills and the amount each trader can claim back will vary.

If you haven’t received a pink envelope but think your business might be eligible call 020 7378 5941 to speak to an advisor.

European Passport Return Service

The council now offers a convenient new service for European nationals living in Wandsworth which allows them to keep hold of their passports when applying to the Home Office for a registration certificate or a document certifying permanent residence.

A-level success

Every secondary school and college in Wandsworth recorded an improved set of A-level results this year with just over 78 per cent of all grades within the A* to C bracket. This puts borough schools ahead of the national average and among the best performers in London.

Homeownership help

The council’s home ownership team is dedicated to supporting local people who live or work in the borough and want to get a foot on the housing ladder. Here are some of the ways they can help.

Affordable Housing Day

The team will be hosting their annual Affordable Housing Open Day on Thursday October 19 in the Wandsworth Civic Suite, Wandsworth High Street.

The event is completely free and will help first time buyers find their way around different home ownership schemes such as Shared Ownership, Right to Buy, Right to Part Buy and House Purchase Grants.

Housing associations, legal advisors, financial advisers and other property experts will also be there to help residents understand their options and take their first steps into homeownership.

House Purchase Grants

This scheme offers eligible council tenants a grant towards buying a home of their own on the open market. In exchange, the tenant gives up their current property so it can go to another local family in need of a roof over their heads.

The scheme helps save taxpayers’ money by reducing the council’s temporary accommodation bill.

Right to Buy

Eligible council tenants can buy their homes from the council with a discount of up to £104,900 on the purchase price. The funds raised through Right to Buy sales are used to finance new affordable housing options for other local people.

Right to Part Buy

This unique scheme allows eligible council tenants to buy a share of their property at a discounted rate, while continuing to pay a low rent on the remaining share.

Tenants can buy a minimum initial share of 25% and can continue to buy additional shares until they own their home outright.

To find out more about any of these homeownership options come to the open day, visit wandsworth.gov.uk/homeownership, housesales@wandsworth.gov.uk or 020 8871 6161.

Open the door
Affordable housing open day
19 October 2017, 2–8pm

Open the door to your first home!
Matthew Andrews, 27, who works for the City of London Police, has swapped a privately rented flat in Tooting for a new shared ownership home in Nine Elms.

He bought a 25 per cent share of a one-bedroom apartment at Riverlight Quay and is now settled in. Matthew explains his buying experience:

“I was previously renting in Tooting and I am now actually paying a little bit less than I was – this includes part mortgage and part rent. I never thought I’d be able to save enough for a deposit in London, but with shared ownership you need a minimum of five per cent of the percentage you’re buying, which is much more affordable than on the open market.

“It’s easy to become disheartened when you read about London property prices, but shared ownership is an affordable way of buying in London. Get your name on the council’s shared ownership register as soon as possible. You get a higher priority the longer you’ve been on the list.”

Last year Wandsworth delivered the second highest number of low cost homes among all 33 London boroughs, despite having less development land and higher land prices than many other parts of the city.

This high building rate is set to continue, with another 822 homes for shared ownership and 863 for low cost rent set to be completed over the next three years.

Unlike many councils, Wandsworth ensures that local residents and workers are first in line for these new properties.

Shared ownership helps people who cannot afford to buy a home at full value by allowing a step-by-step purchase. You can buy a share of between 25 and 75 per cent initially, and pay a discounted rent on the rest, with the chance to buy a larger share at a later date.

If you live or work in Wandsworth, register with us to get priority – last year 90 per cent of shared ownership homes were bought by people who live or work in the borough.

I never thought I’d be able to save enough for a deposit in London, but with shared ownership you need a minimum of 5 per cent of the percentage you’re buying, which is much more affordable than on the open market.”
Earlier this year a delegation of Wandsworth councillors, former council officers and local residents travelled to the Somme Valley in northern France to pay their respects to fallen soldiers and to visit the sites of fierce First World War battles involving the Battersea and Wandsworth battalions.

The group’s first calling point was at the Philosophe Cemetery, close to the town of Lens, where a wreath was laid at the grave of Private Reginald Twyford who was aged just 15 years old when he died fighting for his country in the ‘Pals’ battalion, raised by the then Mayor of Wandsworth. He was only 14 when he volunteered, but persuaded recruiting staff that he was 18 and eligible to fight.

The next stop was at the village of Villers-Plouich which was liberated by Wandsworth’s battalion during the 1917 advance to the Hindenburg Line. The battle for control of the village raged between April and September, and cost the lives of five officers and 87 men from the so-called Wandsworth ‘Pals’ - the 13th (Service) Battalion (Wandsworth), the East Surrey Regiment. During the battle Corporal Edward Foster, a 31-year-old dustman from Tooting, famously stormed up a ravine firing a Lewis gun and helped to dislodge German machine-gun positions. This heroic act was later rewarded with the Victoria Cross.

To mark the 100th anniversary of the liberation of Villers-Plouich, the council delegation laid a wreath at the Fifteen Ravine Cemetery on the outskirts of the village where many men from the Wandsworth Battalion are buried. A separate ceremony of remembrance took place at the village’s own war memorial and also at the site of Corporal Foster’s Lewis Gun assault, with three generations of the Foster family in attendance along with the current Mayor of Villers-Plouich, Raymond Machut. The people of Villers-Plouich are currently raising funds, with a target of 5,000 euros, to erect an impressive obelisk to commemorate Corporal Foster’s valour. Speeches by Raymond Machut, Mayor of Villers-Plouich and Cllr Leslie McDonnell, the council’s Armed Forces Champion, were sealed in a time capsule and buried in the recently-laid concrete foundation for the memorial.

After the war the people of Wandsworth raised funds to rebuild the shattered community of Villers-Plouich and the council unofficially adopted the village in 1920. In 2001 the village reaffirmed its ties to the borough by renaming a square Place de Wandsworth.

A memorial wreath was also placed at the centre of the small village of Flers, which was liberated in September 1916 by the 10th (Service) Battalion (Battersea), The Queen’s (Royal West Surrey) Regiment - another ‘Pals’ battalion, made up of men from Battersea. This was the first battle in history in which tanks were deployed.

Councillors, officers, local groups and borough residents regularly visit Villers-Plouich. The visits are funded privately by those who attend, with zero cost to local taxpayers.

If you would like to contribute towards the commemorative obelisk email mayor@wandsworth.gov.uk
Get ready for winter

Autumn is on its way, and Wandsworth is supporting the NHS Stay Well This Winter campaign which is encouraging vulnerable people to get their flu jab.

People aged over 65, pregnant women, carers and those with long-term conditions, such as diabetes, heart disease, respiratory illness or serious weight issues, are all eligible for a free flu vaccine.

People over the age of 65, even if they are fit and healthy, and those with medical conditions are more vulnerable to the effects of flu, which can be much more severe than a cold and may result in hospital treatment.

If you are pregnant the flu jab doesn’t harm your unborn baby. In fact it can protect your baby from flu for the first few months of life.

All two and three olds can get the jab at their GP (if they are not at school already) and children in reception and school years 1, 2, 3 and 4 will be offered the vaccine at school. Young children can get the vaccine in the form of a nasal spray.

Find out more about the flu jab at wandsworth.gov.uk/flu.

Get your FREE NHS Health Check from your GP.

You must be aged 40-74, have not been previously diagnosed with diabetes, kidney disease, heart disease or stroke and have not had an NHS Health Check in the last five years.

For more information call the council’s public health team on (020) 8871 5026, or visit www.wandsworth.gov.uk/healthchecks
Give tobacco the boot this Stoptober

Stoptober is next month and Wandsworth’s smokers are urged to sign up and promise to quit tobacco for 28 days.

Stoptober is the 28-day stop smoking challenge that encourages and supports smokers across England towards quitting for good. Research shows if you can stop smoking for 28-days, you are five times more likely to be able to stay smoke free for good.

You can sign up now and get ready to quit on October 1 – search for Stoptober. You will receive an email each day to help keep you on track.

In Wandsworth you don’t have to go it alone, the council’s free Stop Smoking Service supports people who are trying to give up tobacco products, including cigarettes and e-cigarettes. Last year more than 1,300 people quit with their help.

Visit wandsworth.gov.uk/stopsmoking
stopsmoking.team@wandsworth.gov.uk or call the 24-hour freephone helpline on 0800 389 7921.

Have you still not had your flu jab?

If you’re 65 or over or you have a long-term health condition, flu can be serious.

That’s why you’re eligible for a free flu jab. Don’t put it off. Get your flu jab straight away.

Putting dignity at the heart of social care

The council's adult services team and charity Leonard Cheshire Disability are at the forefront of a national campaign to put dignity, compassion and respect at the heart of care services.

For the last 18 months senior managers have been working to embed the principles of the national Dignity in Care campaign within every aspect of care for the borough’s most vulnerable residents.

“This is about focusing on the person we are caring for, rather than the conditions they may be struggling with,” said the council’s social care spokesman Cllr Paul Ellis. “A trained Dignity Champion will treat everyone as an individual, support independence and really listen to people’s concerns and wishes, including those of family members and carers.”

William J Gallagher, manager of Leonard Cheshire’s Randall Close Resource Centre in Battersea, said: “Dignity is at the heart of what we do every day, and we never want to forget this. We are delighted Wandsworth Council has led the way in championing dignity and humanity in the borough. We know this is a vital issue for everyone and it can make a terrific difference to the people we support.”

Care staff and senior management have all received special training and are encouraged to sign up to be Dignity Champions.

Barbara’s story

Barbara, 76, was a director of nursing services for Kings College Hospital before she retired. She was admitted into hospital with fractures to her spine and needed support from the council and Leonard Cheshire once she was discharged.

She said: “I feel I’m getting an outstanding quality of care that treats me as a person. Staff were motivated and worked together in a holistic way. I could not have been treated with more dignity and respect and my sister who supports me at home also felt very much part of the experience.”

Pump House Gallery new exhibition: Zadie Xa: The Conch, Sea Urchin and Brass Bell
Join us at the exhibition preview on Wednesday 2 August, 6.30 – 8.30pm - everyone welcome!
Pump House Gallery presents the first major UK solo exhibition by Canadian artist, Zadie Xa. Interweaving fact with fiction, past with future, to explore identity, desire and cultural memory, Xa’s new work employs painting, textile, video and sound to tell the story of a displaced body’s journey and return to a “homeland”. Through such mysterious stories Xa seeks to create a space where we can reconsider notions of national identity, cultural ownership, and folkloric displacement. This exhibition is part of PS/Y’s Hysteria programme and is curated by Mette Kjærgaard Præst in partnership with Pump House Gallery. The exhibition is supported by Wandsworth Council, Arts Council England, Wellcome Trust and Canada Council for the Arts.

You’ll be invited to pitch your idea to a panel of experts and, if successful, be given £2000 to turn your passion into a project, business or social enterprise, as well as support and industry guidance to help you succeed. Groups and individuals are welcome to apply. Sign up now through www.bac.org.uk and search for ‘The Agency’. Deadline: Friday 8 September 2017 Sessions will run on Saturday daytime and Wednesday evenings from 18 September 2017.
Help find new foster carers and get £1,000

People who refer a friend or relative who is successfully approved to be a foster carer will get a thousand pounds under a new council incentive scheme. More foster carers are always needed, and the council’s brought in the initiative because people who are referred by others have a higher application success rate. It is all about spreading the word and encouraging people to sign up to a rewarding job that can transform a child or young person’s life.

People from outside Wandsworth can be referred, and they can be married, single, divorced and from any religious or cultural background. All they need is the resilience and determination to take on a challenge and to have a spare room in their home.

How to refer:
1. When you discuss the opportunity of becoming a foster carer with someone you think is suitable, check they are over 21 years, live in the UK permanently, have a spare room and are likely to pass a police check.
2. This person would then have to contact us to progress their application – call (020) 8871 6666, email carerrecruitment@wandsworth.gov.uk or visit wandsworth.gov.uk/fostering and complete the registration form. They would need to give your name when the assessing social worker completes an initial discussion and books a home visit.
3. If they are selected to enter the assessment process, you will be given an immediate thank-you gift of £200 which will form part of the £1,000 final payment. Your friend will then need to undertake the Skills to Foster course and undertake relevant health and police checks. At this point you will be paid half of the total payment: £500.
4. You will receive the final payment of £300 if your friend goes on to be approved as a foster carer. Please note terms and conditions apply.

Pauline’s fostering journey

Pauline has fostered since 2012 – originally for another agency and then for Wandsworth Council. She’s single with two grown-up children.

I am always out and about busy doing something; I love spending one to one time with the children and young people I foster and taking them out to places they enjoy. As a single foster carer, I believe it is easier for the child because they get one to one attention. This is particularly beneficial for girls who are more comfortable with a female carer.

My first placement was a child aged nine months who was adopted three years later. She was my little shining star, so clever and always happy and beaming. When the time came for her to be adopted I was very sad, but for me it was about preparing her to settle into her new permanent home. I prepared a large photo album and did lots of life story work to help her in her future journey.

Since then I’ve had a number of placements of children ranging from nine months to 16 years and each one has been a different learning experience. Some placements are easier than others but fostering is never easy – it has its challenges but the rewards are enormous.
