Wandsworth freezes council tax for fifth year

Wandsworth has frozen its element of the council tax at £377 for the fifth successive year

Combined with the GLA levy, it means the cost for the average Band D property will again be £684, set to be the UK's lowest and around half the London average.

The council has thanked residents for their part in driving down costs - for example recycling rates are up which has helped save £700,000 a year.

More people are also using online services, saving £500,000 a year.

Last year Wandsworth saved taxpayers £30 million in total. It is doing its bit by cutting management and office costs, making it easier for people to access services online and is getting better prices on contracts.

One example is the borough's new refuse and recycling contract which will deliver savings worth just under £8m over the course of the eight year deal, while also guaranteeing weekly bin collections.

The authority is also thinking innovatively to protect services for example by looking to see whether outside providers could run our libraries more effectively and at lower cost.

New look for Tooting Triangle playground

Young children living near Tooting Common now have a great new playground to explore and enjoy.

The new-look Tooting Triangle playground has reopened following a £215,000 revamp and now boasts the latest outdoor play equipment including large timber climbing pieces, a

Two new primary schools planned

Two new primary schools are planned for Tooting and Putney.

Graveney School has put in a bid to the government to open a new primary free school in Franciscan Road, Tooting in September 2013. It would be located in the Professional Centre - a former school building that has been used for many years as a training centre for teachers.

The new school would admit 60 pupils into two reception classes each year, eventually creating places for 420 children in total, covering an age range from four to 11.

It would be overseen by Graveney but would have its own headteacher and primary teachers.

It would have standard admissions arrangements and would not be a feeder school for Graveney when its pupils transfer to secondary school.

The council can also push ahead with proposals to build a new primary school in Putney following its purchase of the former Putney Hospital. The school will be an academy, which means that it will be independent of local authority control. It will provide 420 primary places from 2015 for children living in the west of the borough.

The scheme also includes 24 flats at the northern end of the site for which planning permission was obtained in July 2010. Proceeds from the sale of the flats will help pay for the school. hammock, swings and a giant sandpit.

Cabinet member for children's services Kathy Tracey said: "This is a tremendous natural look playground for children in the area. It has a great range of new equipment and is sure to be a popular leisure spot for local families."

The council also recently unveiled proposals for a $\pounds 200,000$ investment in the Battersea Park adventure playground and a further $\pounds 300,000$ for the borough's two other adventure playgrounds.

Wandsworth manages more than 200 playgrounds and play areas in parks, commons and housing estates. Over the past four years £2.5 million has been spent on maintaining and improving these facilities for young people. The town hall also provides a grant worth £125,000 a year to a local charity which provides an adventure playground on Wandsworth Common specifically aimed at children with disabilities.

Tackling street drinking

New powers could be used to tackle problems caused by the borough's street drinkers.

The council and Wandworth Police have agreed to introduce new Designated Public Place Orders (DPPOs) to deal with specific problems.

Within a clearly defined zone where a DPPO is in force officers have the authority to stop people drinking in a public place and if necessary confiscate any alcohol in their possession. Anyone who fails to comply would be guilty of an offence and could face an on-the spot fine or prosecution in the magistrates court.

The first DPPO is being considered on the Ashburton Estate in Putney following complaints from local residents about the anti-social activities of a hardcore group of drinkers.

Before an order can be set up, there must be widespread consultation with the local community, and all other courses of action, such as more police patrols and efforts to enrol people in alcohol treatment programmes, must have been tried.

The council's community safety spokesman Cllr Jonathan Cook said: "If a DPPO is introduced following public consultation, it should be stressed that this would not mean a drinking ban on other members of the public. Law abiding residents who may choose to sit on the grass outside their flat and not cause any bother to other people would not be affected by this."

Elliott School consultation

People living near Putney's Elliott School will be invited to comment on plans to upgrade the building and secure its long term future.

Proposals are being jointly worked up by the school governors, Wandsworth Council and education charity ARK Schools to remodel Elliott and convert it into an academy from September.

The multi-million pound building project for the grade II listed building will also include new sports facilities. It is proposed that funding comes from disposing of part of the school grounds.

Previous remodelling plans had to be abandoned following the end of the last government's Building Schools for the Future project. Governors, the council and ARK believe that disposing of part of the site is the only way to fund this vital work to the standard required by English Heritage. The consultation will run until 24 May. The final decision will be made by the Department for Education.

There will be a further chance to comment later this year on subsequent planning applications for the school, including the provision of temporary accommodation for the school to move into this December.

Cabinet member for education and children's services, Cllr Kathy Tracey, said: "We are delighted to be working with ARK Schools and the school governors. This is a terrific opportunity to carry out much needed improvements and provide Putney parents with the secondary school they deserve."

SHARRAR TERST

Shared ownership means you can get on the property ladder in manageable, affordable stages – you choose a property you like, buy a share you can afford and pay a subsidised rent on the rest. You can save substantially on renting a similar property privately and you can increase your share at any time all the way to 100%.

And shared ownership doesn't mean compromise, take Kingsway Square, Battersea. Located on Lurline Gradens, close to Battersea Park and Queenstown Road station, Kingsway Square seamlessly combines a spectacular, Edwardian former college with sympathetically designed new buildings, set around a private, landscaped square. Inside, every apartment has been designed and fitted to a high-end, contemporary style specification, whilst the entrance hall and communal areas are resolutely grand, featuring high ceilinged, arched spaces with large, stained glass windows and polished marble floors.

Prices for a studio apartment start from just £245,000, so you can purchase a 25% share for £61,250*. Call us today to discuss your eligibility and book an appointment to view.

According to the report, commissioned by Wandsworth and Lambeth Councils and Transport for London, the Northern Line Extension would enable the underdeveloped Nine Elms district to support the same high levels of commercial activity as the rest of central London.

A fully developed Nine Elms could provide up to 25,000 new jobs, 16,000 new homes and will include the new home of the US Embassy and a redeveloped New Covent Garden Market. Property values are expected to rise faster in Nine Elms than in any other part of London according to property agency Knight Frank.

A multi-billion development programme has now begun transforming Nine Elms into a high density residential and business quarter. More than 20 sites are now gearing up for redevelopment and work has begun on some.

In February planning permission was given for the 15 acre Embassy Gardens scheme (pictured). This will provide 1,982 new homes alongside shops, cafes, bars, restaurants, business space, a 100 bed hotel, a health centre, children's playgrounds and sports pitches.

Developers Ballymore will pay between £52.5m and £55.7m towards improving the local transport and social infrastructure, including the Northern Line Extension.

Earlsfield praised

Earlsfield has been judged to be one of the capital's best kept secrets for people looking for somewhere to live. The Metro newspaper highlighted a vibrant high street, excellent schools, good transport links and easy access to green spaces.

The council is currently helping fund a major revamp of Earlsfield station, including two lifts, new walkways and ticket offices housed in a new, modern building. All work is due for completion this summer.

MY WANDSWORTH

Vanessa Eastman

I've been a Wandsworth resident for twelve years. The borough is significantly multi-cultural and community orientated. From an economical perspective, living in the borough has been beneficial for me due to the council tax being so reasonable.

An Open Council

It's become easier than ever for Wandsworth residents to see how the council is performing compared with others.

Wandsworth has become the first UK council to be completely open about how it's doing. Information about how well we are providing services, including schools, libraries, care services and roads, has been set out in an easy-to-read format on our website.

Each graph shows our performance compared with other London boroughs, together with an explanation of the results from the relevant cabinet member.

This data has been available publicly for a while, but this new format makes it easier to find. The public can have their say by posting comments on the site, which are then fed through to the relevant department.

Council leader, Ravi Govindia said: "This gives members of the public easy access to information they have every right to see - and in turn an opportunity to hold their council to account if they feel we should be doing better. I have no doubt that transparency and openness on this level will drive us to become an even better council."

Household recycling rate

Wandsworth's rank in London: 26

Councillor Jonathan Cook, cabinet member for environment, culture and community Safety says...

"A high proportion of the materials we collect are recycled. Our overall recycling figure climbs to a very healthy 40 per cent when including our innovative Energy from Waste facility, where metals are recovered from household waste and recycled. We are also piloting a bulky item reuse service and waste chute re-designation to further improve recycling rates."

Visit www.wandsworth.gov.uk/opencouncil.

Library books issued

Wandsworth's rank in London: 3

Councillor Jonathan Cook, cabinet member for environment, culture and community Safety says...

"This consistently high result is achieved by offering customers book stock with range, depth and quality achieved by financial investment and professional librarians."

Council homes which do not meet government standards

Wandsworth's rank in London: 1

Councillor Paul Ellis, cabinet member for housing says...

"This authority was one of the first in the country to achieve the Government's decent homes standard, achieving full compliance with that standard in 2007 some three years ahead of the Government target. The council was able to do this without recourse to Government borrowing and continues to maintain a viable 30 year business plan that will mean that funding is available to keep stock decent. Effective programme delivery, active asset management and our prudent approach means that we are able to undertake and programme improvements beyond the Decent Homes Standard."

Pupils achieving at least five GCSEs at grades A*-C including English and Maths

Wandsworth's rank in London: 15

Councillor Kathy Tracey, cabinet member for education and children's services says...

"This was the best performance ever for Wandsworth, well above the national average. Wandsworth has also improved faster than the national average, with an increase of 18.7 percentage points since 2006.

Full details on the work done to support schools to achieve this can be found in the Annual Quality and Standards Report (2011) available on the council's website."

Training community champions

A charity is tapping into the strong community spirit which emerged after Clapham Junction was targeted by looters and vandals – by training residents to become volunteer community mediators

Battersea-based charity the Wandsworth Mediation Service has been awarded a £4,500 council grant to train 15 volunteers.

Community mediators promote peace by listening to people involved in conflicts before bringing them together to search for a solution. Problems could include a dispute between neighbours who have hurled abuse at each other for so long they have forgotten how it all started, or couples in the midst of an acrimonious break up.

Manager Joanna Price said: "Wandsworth Council has obviously realised how important a mediation service is to community cohesion and has therefore agreed to help fund the training for new volunteers – we are delighted to have the town hall's support.

"While many of us in our local communities spend time complaining about the problems that led to the summer riots, these 15 people have decided to do something positive to benefit their neighbourhoods.

"The money will enable them all to go through an intensive 35 hour mediation course and other related training, before giving up their evenings and weekends to promote peace within the community."

New riverboat pier

A new passenger landing pier is planned on the Thames between Wandsworth and Battersea railway bridges.

Hundreds of residents rely on the Putney to Blackfriars riverbus service and the pier at Plantation Wharf in Battersea will create an extra stopping point in the borough for those looking to travel into and across the capital along the River Thames.

The public passenger landing pier will be provided in conjunction with pontoons housing nine private residential moorings and two leisure craft moorings.

Riverboat operator Thames Clippers recently expanded its operation to St George Wharf in Vauxhall and it intends to further extend the commuter service as far as Putney.

More and better river transport is one of the aims of the council's Travel Choices campaign. Other recent successes include Government backing for a Northern Line extension to Nine Elms and Battersea, and the expansion of car club schemes in the borough.

The Plantation Wharf pier development, submitted by Cube Real Estate, was granted planning permission on February 16.

Volunteering to join the service

DELL COOL IN

The Metropolitan Police welcomes help from volunteers. There's two main ways to get involved.

Become a Special

Metropolitan Special Constabulary (MSC) officers - called special constables - provide vital support.

As well as learning new skills and enjoying varied, and sometimes exciting work, you'll have the satisfaction of knowing that you are helping to reduce crime, disorder and fear.

MSC officers are given much the same roles as regular, full-time police officers. They are issued with the same uniform and equipment and also have the same powers of arrest. In many cases Specials will patrol as part of a Safer Neighbourhoods Team, working together with local people on tackling local issues.

Become a Met Volunteer

The Met Volunteer Programme (MVP) was established in 2001 to get local communities more closely involved with their policing, free up officer time and bring valuable skills into the force to improve the service it delivers to the public. Work could include:

- Helping at front counters
- General administration
- Press Office support
- Role-plays for police training
- Neighbourhood Watch support
- Working with Volunteer Police Cadets (VPCs).

All change for refuse collection

You'll see changes to your refuse and recycling collection from April.

The main changes are

- Collection days will change. Find your new collection day at www.wandsworth.gov.uk/refusecollection.
- Rubbish and recycling will be collected at the same time using vehicles with separate compartments.
- Saturday morning collections will cease. Residents frequently complained about early morning noise.
- Nightly collections from flats above shops will stop.
- Garden waste can now be put in with general household rubbish, to be sent to the Belvedere energyfrom-waste incinerator. You will no longer have to pay for separate garden waste collections. Put garden waste in black bags, not orange ones – it cannot be recycled.
- Residents will get three rolls of 30 green sacks delivered once a year.

These are the latest in a series of changes to refuse and recycling collection, designed to improve the service for residents, make savings and reduce the amount of waste being produced.

The borough's overall recycling rate – combining household recycling and the recycling of incinerator ash and metals – has passed the 40 per cent mark for the first time.

In 2012/2013, the council expects to collect around 26,000 tonnes of recycling from homes across the borough, saving around $\pounds 58.50$ per tonne compared to residual waste disposal costs. In total this will save around $\pounds 1.5m$.

The amount of general rubbish has also fallen by around 29,000 tonnes since 2003/04. With waste disposal costs continuing to rise, this decline is expected to save around \pounds 4m next year.

The opening of the new recycling plant at Smugglers Way last year means a much wider range of plastics can be recycled, while the new energy-from-waste plant means rubbish is no longer sent to landfill. The plant at Belevedere incinerates the rubbish and generates electricity from it.

garden waste Ash produced by incinerating waste contains pieces of glass, rubble, sand, grit and stone, which are sorted into different size grains for use in construction projects such as road building.

The 26,000

tonnes of recycling the council expects to collect over the coming year is equivalent to the weight of about 145 blue whales, or 6,500 elephants.

What can be recycled in orange bags/bins?

Mixed glass, bottles and jars.

Please remove lids, tops or corks. Mirrors, pyrex, window glass and broken glass cannot be recycled.

Milk, juice and soup cartons and Tetra Pak cartons. Please remove plastic tops.

Newspapers, magazines and other paper and card products. No wet or shredded paper please.

Plastic bottles, yoghurt pots and food tubs and trays. Please rinse of excess food and remove lids or tops and plastic film wrapping. Foil containers cannot be recycled.

Cans, tins and empty aerosols.

What about furniture & dot & clothing and furniture?

Please do not put clothing in orange bags or bins. Take items in good condition to a charity shop or go to www.recyclenow.com to find the location of your nearest clothes recycling bank.

Electrical items or furniture can be taken to the Smugglers Way recycling centre. Alternatively, you can book a chargable bulky waste collection on (020) 8871 8558.

The council has also launched the new Reuse scheme in partnership with the William Wilberforce Trust. You can request a collection for bulky items, or take them to Smugglers Way. Items are repaired and sold on at affordable prices. The collection charges are the same as the council's bulky waste charges. Call (020) 3142 8506.

Find out more at www.wandsworth.gov.uk/recycling.

I booked a collection by the Re-use Service for bulky items and the items were collected three days later by the William Wilberforce Trust. The service was quick and efficient, the collectors turned up on time and were very helpful and friendly. This is an excellent service and not expensive and it's good to know that items will be re-used and/or used for training purposes. I'll certainly use the service again and recommend it to others. I'm glad that Wandsworth is supporting and publicising it. Deirdre Feehan. Wandsworth

Not sending waste to landfill means the global warming effects of methane emissions from rubbish dumps are avoided.

Fund helps communities help themselves

Thousands of local people give up their time each week to help out in their local community. The council works with the voluntary sector through its contractor Volunteering Wandsworth, and by offering grants and other support.

Here are just some of the ways volunteering is thriving in the borough.

Volunteering for business

Volunteers have been working at Sheringdale School as part of a drive to get companies more involved in volunteering.

Twenty staff from Contact Law went along to the Southfields primary school to carry out improvements to the playground. The day was a pilot project for Volunteering Wandsworth's Employer Supported Volunteering Scheme.

The scheme will match up companies who are happy for their staff to carry out work in the community. Volunteering Wandsworth works on behalf of the council to increase volunteer opportunities in the borough.

Sheringdale headteacher Kevin Hogston said: "There was a great buzz about the day with a great sense of community spirit in helping the school which was excellent."

Dan Watkins from Contact Law said: "As a Londonbased business we were impacted by the riots last summer and we felt compelled to take action. We have arranged a regular programme of volunteering activities, from environmental-focused ones like this, through to support of the elderly and mentoring of the unemployed."

To find out how to take part in the scheme, contact Volunteering Wandsworth on 0300 365 9950.

They give support and advice on who to contact for help such as replacing lost documents and carrying out cleaning and repair work. The ten volunteers were chosen and trained following an open evening at the Town Hall. Volunteer Marie Burmiston said: "Not everybody has an extended family to turn to, and people can be apprehensive about a visit from an authority figure. Knowing that it's another resident from the borough coming to visit can breakdown the barriers and make all the difference."

Tooting resident Alverna Chudasama was visited by two of the volunteer team after a fire in her living room. She said: "A few days after the fire somebody from the fire brigade called and asked me if I needed any help getting things done. Then two lovely volunteers came and talked to me for nearly an hour before giving me some information with the contact details on."

If you have had a fire and would like a visit, call or text your name and contact details to 07585 306688.

Turning scrap into art

As part of our new regular focus on volunteering groups, this month we look at the work of the Wandsworth Work and Play Scrapstore.

The Scrapstore, in Tooting, takes unwanted items from local companies and gives them to people who can make good use of them.

Frequent users are school and playgroups, whose teachers turn up to the Scrapstore to find items that can be used for crafts or in a school play.

The National Portrait Gallery sends auction catalogues which are glossy and heavily inked, so not ideal for recycling - but perfect for collages. Foam sheets used by NASA for sound proofing quickly get snapped up, Ted Baker send unwanted mannequins and 'glitter waste' is especially popular. The last couple of metres on the end of a roll of silver card used in cigarette packaging are of little use to the manufacturers, but great for art projects.

The Scrapstore, a voluntary organisation and registered charity, is always keen to attract new users and donors. Visit www.workandplayscrapstore.org.uk.

Cash for youth groups

A grant scheme for young people, awarded by young people, has celebrated a successful first year.

The Wandsworth Youth Opportunity Fund (YOF) is a $\pm 100,000$ pot given to young people to fund community projects, or to spruce up premises used by youth groups.

A panel of trained young people shortlist applications then invite bidders to present to them Dragons' Den style. After grants have been awarded they go and inspect projects to monitor how the money has been spent.

Successful applications in 2011 included a dance workshop, a filmmaking workshop a new music studio, a sensory room for young people with disabilities and comedy workshops.

The next deadline for applications is May 7.

Email yof@wandsworth.gov.uk or call Antonia on (020) 8871 8530.

Apply now for the next round of Wandsworth Big Society FUNDING

The Wandsworth Big Society Fund, launched last year, helps grassroots community projects get off the ground. It is now accepting applications for the third round of grants.

Its first two rounds of funding have helped dozens of community and voluntary groups and non-profit organisations – with almost \pm 117,000 awarded to projects that help older and vulnerable people and improve local communities.

Grants of up to $\pm 5,000$ are available, but any over $\pm 1,000$ will require evidence of match funding. Applicants also need to get endorsement from their ward councillor.

The deadline for applications is April 16.

Find out more at www.wandsworth.gov.uk/wbsf, or contact Nigel Chandler on (020) 8871 6206.

Round two WBSF recipients include:

• The Doddington Community Roof Garden will set up familyfriendly workshops that focus on gardening, art and healthy eating.

• Tooting Graveney Daycare will provide exercise and computer classes for older people and provide transport to users with mobility problems.

• The Wandsworth Sickle Cell and Thalassaemia Support Group will use their grant of to run workshops and raise awareness.

• The Roehampton Football Community Academy will provide football coaching for 16 to 25-year-olds to teach discipline, teamwork, social skills and timekeeping.

Federico is garden hero

Volunteer Federico Filippi has been named a Garden Hero by the Capital Growth campaign for his work at Mount Court, a sheltered housing scheme in Putney.

Federico, a volunteer with the Garden Partners scheme, has worked tirelessly over the past year to bring new life to the gardens at Mount Court, growing organic vegetables, fruit and herbs. He has rekindled interest among residents who thought their gardening days were over, but who are now joining in with growing and watering. A new greenhouse, donated by the Prince's Trust, will allow Federico and his 'team' to grow a wide range of seeds next year.

And this year they plan to introduce bee-keeping at the scheme, thanks to Federico's £250 prize from Capital Growth.

Garden Partners is run by Age UK Wandsworth and supported by the council and NHS Wandsworth. Call Sarah Jackson on (020) 8877 8946 or visit www.ageuk.org.uk/wandsworth.

Share a garden for a growing friendship

Are you over 60 and struggling to look after your garden?

Or perhaps you dream of more garden space where you can grow flowers, fruit and vegetables?

Garden Partners matches older garden owners living in the London Borough of Wandsworth with fully vetted volunteers who would like to tend a garden regularly.

The 'garden partners' form a team to plan the garden together and share any fruit or vegetables grown.

Rowing for gold at Barn Elms

The Barn Elms Boathouse is run by the council to give everyone in Wandsworth the chance to take part in rowing, writes Eugene Allen.

Olympic Gold medalist Martin Cross grew up using the facilities, training on the river in the early stages of his rowing life. Cross went on to have a successful professional career, winning bronze in the 1980 Moscow games and then gold in the 1984 Los Angeles games.

He told BrightSide: "Growing up, it was a great place to learn. It's a fantastic centre and crucial for young rowers who don't go to independent schools."

Martin believes the image of rowing as the preserve of the middle classes is slowly changing: "The face of our sport is constantly evolving. It's no longer the preserve of private schools and the international team is testament to that, as around 40 percent of its members come from state schools.

"Facilities like Barn Elms have an important role in ensuring this local talent continue to come through."

Barn Elms Boathouse runs courses for adults and young people aged from 12.

A booklet will be delivered to every elector in April by the London Elects team containing information about the Mayoral candidates and how to cast your votes. Download a registration form at www.wandsworth.gov.uk/vote, email electoral@wandsworth.gov.uk Or call (020) 8871 6023.

Summer of sport and celebration

You'd have to be living under a rock not to know that the Olympics come to London and the Queen is celebrating her Diamond Jubilee this summer.

But you may not know how much is going on in Wandsworth. The following is a timeline of the main events.

June 3 Diamond Jubilee Flotilla and Pageant and Diamond Jubilee Festival

The seven mile-long, 1,000 vessel flotilla headed by the Queen will set off along the river from Battersea. It will take 90 minutes to pass any given point and around 20,000 people are expected to take part.

The festival in Battersea Park is expected to be one of the largest public events held in London. It will feature different zones dedicated to design, music, fashion, art, film and food from each of the six decades of the Queen's reign and will include a funfair, tea dance and live music.

For details visit www.thamesdiamondjubileepageant.org.

June 3 The Big Jubilee Lunch

Communities are being encouraged to share lunch with neighbours and friends as part of the Diamond Jubilee celebrations. Wandsworth Council has announced it will be free to organise jubilee street parties.

More at www.wandsworth.gov.uk/streetparties.

July 21 River of Music

BT River of Music is part of the Cultural Olympiad and will feature performances by international and local musicians representing all the Olympic and Paralympic nations. Battersea Park will host the Asia Stage and the ticketed event will be free.

Find out more at http://festival.london2012.com/events.

July 23 Olympic Torch Relay

The torch arrives in the borough at Southfields and makes its way to Tooting Common for a spectacular free concert in the evening.

www.london2012.com/games/olympic-torch-relay.

July 27 Olympic Games start July 28-29 Men's and women's cycle road races

These will pass through Putney and Roehampton twice each en route from The Mall to Box Hill and back again. Roads in the area are expected to be severely affected for the entire weekend.

► For details see www.london2012.com/cycling-road.

July 28-August 5 Olympic tennis at Wimbledon

Roads are likely to be congested and parking will be affected in Southfields.

More at www.london2012.com/tennis

July 28-August 5 Olympic Route Network in operation

The ORN will be active during the Olympic tennis event. This will affect roads from Wimbledon Parkside to Vauxhall Cross, including Tibbett's Corner, West Hill, Wandsworth town centre, York Road, Battersea Park Road and Nine Elms Lane. See detailed maps at www.tfl.gov.uk/ORN.

Wandsworth on Film

It's home to historic buildings, beautiful parks, vibrant towns and bustling streets, so it's no surprise that Wandsworth is consistently ranked each year as one of the top five boroughs in London for filming.

Over the past year Meryl Streep, Friends star Matt LeBlanc, and pop sensation One Direction have all paid the borough a visit.

Wandsworth hosts more than a thousand filming and photoshoot days every year. Last year, the council raised about £180,000 by approving various film and TV projects – money which is fed back into the town hall, helping ensure council tax remains the lowest in the country.

One of the most popular filming locations remains Battersea Park. Last summer, Meryl Streep visited the green space to film scenes for the Oscar winning The Iron Lady along with Olivia Colman, who played Margaret Thatcher's daughter, Carol.

Also using the park as a backdrop last year were Bollywood blockbuster Ra One and One Direction who filmed part of their latest music video in the park.

Elsewhere, BBC science programme Bang Goes The Theory filmed an experiment testing homemade glue on the diving board at Tooting Lido while in January this year, Balham residents might have spotted Matt LeBlanc in Harrison's while he filmed some of the second series of Episodes.

Other productions include BBC spy drama Page Eight starring Bill Nighy and Rachel Weisz, which filmed inside Battersea Park and in Prince of Wales Drive, plus The Inbetweeners Movie, Chalet Girl, Cockneys vs Zombies, Woody Allen's You Will Meet a Tall Dark Stranger, New Tricks, Ashes to Ashes, Above Suspicion, The Jury, Spooks and Law and Order.

► Residents and businesses who are interested in hiring out their properties to film crews can submit their details to the Film Office's free database at www.wandsworth.gov.uk/film.
