Lighting

PS52 Automatic Change-over contactor

92. Any automatic change-over contactor provided to transfer the escape lighting from the normal lighting supply to the battery supply shall be so designed as to operate immediately and efficiently to the Licensing Authority's satisfaction.

PS53 Construction and arrangements of Lighting Fittings

93. The construction arrangements and installation of light fittings shall be such as to reduce to a minimum the risk of interference, of fire and of injury to persons and comply with the appropriate British Standard

PS54 Electric Supply of Battery Circuits

94. The mains supply to the escape lighting control unit shall be obtained from a sub-main independently controlled at the main distribution centre for the premises.

PS55 Escape Lighting

95. The escape lighting installation, including its total load, shall not be altered without the consent of the Licensing Authority.

96. Any escape lighting battery shall be fully charged before the admission of the public.

97. Should the normal lighting and the escape lighting system have a 1 hour capacity the public shall leave the premises within 30 minutes unless within that time the normal lighting has been restored and the batteries are being re-charged. If the escape lighting system has a three-hour capacity the public shall leave the premises within 1 hour unless within that time normal lighting has been restored and the batteries are being re-charged. If the patrons have left the premises they shall not be readmitted until normal lighting has been fully restored and the battery or batteries fully recharged.

PS56 Escape Lighting Batteries

98. Unless otherwise permitted by the Licensing Authority, any battery supplying the escape lighting shall be capable of maintaining the full escape lighting load continuously for a period of not less than 3 hours.

PS57 Lighting Equipment

99. Lighting equipment used in the auditorium and on the stages and platforms shall be of stout construction, encased in rigid, non-combustible material and designed to withstand the temperatures caused by the illuminant without excessive temperature rise on the outer casing and to resist mechanical damage.

PS58 Lighting of Intake & Control Room

100. Where required by the Licensing Authority, escape lighting shall be provided within electric intakes and main switch and control rooms.

PS59 Lighting Requirements

101. All parts of the premises shall be provided with adequate means of illumination and, except where otherwise permitted by the Licensing Authority, those portions to which the public have access and all routes of escape for performers or staff shall be provided with adequate means of illumination from two independent sources.

PS60 Management Lighting

102. In the absence of adequate daylight in any area used by the public the management lighting in such areas shall be fully in operation whilst the public are on the premises.

103. If essential to the entertainment and agreed by the Licensing Authority, lighting in the entertainment area (except for fire safety signs) may be reduced or extinguished provided:-

- (i) The lighting is controlled from a position with a clear view of the audience
- (ii) An operator stands by such controls whilst the lighting is reduced or extinguished who shall restore the management lighting in the event of any emergency.

104. Fire safety signs shall be fully illuminated at all material times.

105. There shall be adequate illumination to enable persons on the premises to see their way out.

PS61 Segregation of the two systems of lighting

106. Where two lighting systems are provided each shall be so installed that a fault or accident arising on one system shall not jeopardise the other.

Heating/Ventilation

PS62 Air Conditioning

107. Any provision for air warming or conditioning shall be so arranged as to minimise to risk of contamination of the air supply by smoke or fumes.

PS63 Apparatus in Ducts

108. Electric motors and other apparatus shall not be installed in any air duct or in the air stream of any mechanical ventilation system except in so far as they form part of the ventilation system.

PS64 Boiler Chambers & Fuel Storage Chambers

109. Any boiler and any fuel storage chamber shall be constructed and arranged

- (i) to minimise the risk of fire and the spread of fire and smoke
- (ii) to limit the effect of any explosion
- (iii) in the case of oil fuel, to prevent the spread of any leakage of oil and to safeguard from fire any oil storage.

PS65 Cleansing of Flues, Ventilation Ducting and Shafts

110. The flue of any boiler or heating appliance shall be professionally cleaned at intervals not less than the minimum recommended by the appliance manufacturer.

111. Ventilation ducting and shafts generally shall be maintained in a clean condition.

112. Ventilation air filters shall be cleaned or changed for new filters periodically as may be necessary to maintain a satisfactory flow of air supply.

113. All interior surfaces of extract ventilation ducting serving kitchens and serveries shall be thoroughly cleaned at least annually.

PS66 Direction of Air

114. The ventilation of premises intended to be used for stage performances shall be such that the direction of air movement during such performances shall be from the auditorium towards the stage.

PS67 Heating & Ventilation

115. Provision shall be made to the satisfaction of the Licensing Authority for warming all parts of the premises regularly occupied by the public, the performers or the staff.

PS68 Limitation of Leakage

116. Where an oil-fired installation is designed to operate unattended, provision shall be made to limit the quantity of oil which might flow into the boiler or generator chamber under gravity (or syphonic action) or by pumped delivery as a result of damage to the piping or apparatus.

PS69 Minimum Flash-point

117. Unless the Licensing Authority shall decide otherwise in any particular case apparatus burning oil having a closed flash-point below 66 degree C shall not be installed.

PS70 Oil Fired Heating Installations

118. Oil-fired heating and diesel generator installations shall be constructed and installed to prevent danger from fire or explosion.

PS71 Permanent Ventilation Rooms,

119. Enclosures, to be ventilated Ventilation shall be provided to enclosures, as the Licensing Authority may consider necessary.

PS72 Re-circulation, Refrigeration

120. Any elaboration of the basic ventilation systems, including re-circulation and refrigeration, shall be subject to such conditions as the Licensing Authority may require.

PS73 Self-contained Local Heating Equipment

121. Apparatus in which the heat is generated locally shall be installed only in approved positions.

PS74 Standard of Ventilation

122. Adequate ventilation shall be provided at all parts of the premises; and shall be such as

- (i) to exclude as far as practicable the entry and distribution of fire and smoke,
- (ii) to maintain hygienic conditions, and
- (iii) to facilitate the removal of any smoke or fumes direct to the open air.

PS75 Ventilation

123. The premises shall be effectively ventilated at all material times. In theatres and similar auditoria where the ventilation is designed to maintain a positive air pressure balance in the auditorium the ventilation system shall be operated so as to maintain the pressure balance at all material times.

PS76 Warming of Premises

124. Any means of warming the premises shall be installed in a permanent manner and carried out in accordance with such conditions as the Licensing Authority may require.

Electrical/Gas Installation

PS77 Apparatus to be enclosed

125. Except where specified by the Licensing Authority, main switches, meters and other electrical apparatus in connection with the intake from each independent source of supply, any apparatus used for generating, converting, transforming or rectifying electricity, and where required by the Licensing Authority, electrical motors, other electrical plant or machinery and any storage battery shall be installed in separate ventilated enclosures.

PS78 Compliance with I.E.E. Regulations

126. The Regulations of the Institution of Electrical Engineers shall be complied with except in so far as departure therefrom is required by any other condition on the licence.

PS79 Distribution Mains for Exhibitions

127. Permanent distribution mains with adequate means of connection, isolation and protection shall be provided in premises at which exhibitions etc. are frequently held so as to minimise the use of temporary wiring.

PS80 Gas Appliances Protection of Surroundings

128. Gas appliances shall be so arranged that a dangerous rise in temperature will not be caused in any combustible portions of the structure or decoration.

PS81 Gas Consuming Devices

129. Gas consuming devices shall be installed to the Licensing Authority's satisfaction so as to minimise the risk of leakage and/or explosion.

131. All piping of the consumers gas installation shall be of rigid hard metal and shall be securely fixed away from electrical wiring (except as required by the Regulations of the Institution of Electrical Engineers) and apparatus, and shall, where required by the Licensing Authority, be efficiently protected against corrosion.

PS84 Gas, Position of Appliances

132. Gas-fired cooking and heating appliances for space heating, shall be installed only in rooms or enclosures specially approved for the purpose by the Licensing Authority and ventilated direct to the open air.

PS85 High Voltage Apparatus

133. Apparatus for bulk supply of electricity at pressures exceeding low voltage shall be provided only with the Licensing Authority's consent and subject to such conditions as the Licensing Authority considers necessary.

PS86 Labelling of Switchgear

134. All switchgear and distribution board shall be clearly marked to indicate the circuits controlled.

PS87 Limitation of Voltage

135. Installations requiring voltages higher than low voltage shall not be provided except with the consent of the Licensing Authority and in accordance with the conditions of such consent.

PS88 Positions of Control Apparatus Within Reach of the Public

136. Switches, fuse boards and other control apparatus shall be so installed so as to minimise the possibility of interference by the public.

PS89 Precautions for Differing Voltages

137. In premises where the lighting fittings are connected to two or more electrical systems at sensibly different voltages, arrangements shall be made to ensure that lamps will be inserted only in lampholders supplied at the appropriate voltage.

PS90 Protection of Final Sub-Circuits

138. Overload protection (e.g. fuses or circuit breakers) to final sub-circuits shall be rated so as to afford protection to the apparatus permanently connected thereto.

PS91 Remote Control of Motors

139. Where an electrical motor is started manually from a remote position, an approved device shall be provided adjacent to the starting switch to indicate correct functioning of the motor.

PS92 Resistors, Reactors, Capacitors

140. All electrical equipment shall be adequately ventilated to prevent excessive rise of temperature under normal working conditions.

PS93 Systems of Wiring

141. Systems of wiring employed for permanent electrical installations shall be those in which all cables and conductors are enclosed throughout in protective covering of materials of adequate strength to resist mechanical damage. Such installations shall comply with the Regulations of the Institution of Electrical Engineers.

PS94 Temporary Electrical Installations

142. Temporary electrical installations shall not be provided without 14 days prior notification being given to the Licensing Authority.

143. Temporary electrical installations shall be inspected and certified by a competent person before they are put into use. A copy of the certificate shall be sent to the Licensing Authority.

144. Such temporary electrical installations shall only be acceptable for a period of up to 3 months. This period may be extended subject to a satisfactory electrical test and inspection report being submitted to the Licensing Authority at the end of each 3-month period.

PS95 Transformer Chambers & Switch Rooms

145. Any transformer chamber, switch room or enclosure for apparatus for main electricity supply or main gas meters shall be constructed and arranged

- (i) To minimise the risk of fire and the spread of fire and smoke
- (ii) To limit the effect of any explosion.

Plant

PS96 Access to Plant

146. Adequate means of access shall be provided to all machines and plant which require regular servicing or maintenance.

PS97 Apparatus Working Under Pressure

147. Every boiler or other apparatus working under pressure shall be provided with safety devices and indicators to the Licensing Authority's satisfaction.

PS98 Generator, Operating Instructions
